EMPOWERING WOMEN THROUGH SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURAL FARMING

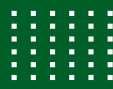

Mrs. Sunanda Hambirarao Ghodake, a resident of Darewadi village, relies on agriculture for her family's livelihood. With a 1-acre farm where sugarcane and paddy are the major crops, she sought additional support through the DBF's 'Gram Parivartan Project. She acquired a Vermi Compost Bed and received comprehensive guidance on its usage to enhance crop quality and production.

Following the advice, she implemented vermi composting in her farm. She decided to plant brinjal alongside sugarcane, using only vermi compost as fertilizer and spraying vermi wash liquid for brinjal plant growth. By adopting organic farming practices, she avoided purchasing additional fertilizers from the market.

As a result, the brinjal plants got cultivated in Mrs. Ghodake's farm exhibited remarkable improvements in color, size, and freshness. This led to higher market prices for her produce. Presently, she has harvested 285 kg of brinjal, fetching her a profit of over Rs. 17,000.

Mrs. Ghodake expresses her sincere gratitude to the Dalmia Foundation for providing her with the opportunity to improve her financial situation under Gram Parivartan Project.
