A CASE STUDY

Goat Farming under Gram Parivartan project

Mrs. Dolma Lama, a widow from the village of Langcherui, is a farmer managing 0.5 acres of land. With a family of eight, including two sons who work as daily wage laborers, she started goat rearing in 2022, beginning with two female goats. Initially, the goats were kept in the house, but they have since built a separate shelter for them. Mrs. Lama and her daughter-in-law take care of the farming.

Last year, they received training in goat rearing, along with support for medicine and feed supplements from DBF. Additionally, seeds for vegetable cultivation were provided, along with guidance for establishing a kitchen garden. In July, she sold one male goat for Rs. 3,000. Currently, their herd consists of ten goats: three mature females, four kids, two mature males, and one castrated male, with an estimated total value of Rs. 60,000 to 70,000.
